A plat of the Hunt & McLelland lings was filed in the county yesterday. The line takes its water from Douglas creek, which is a tributary to the Fountain and is situated up the Ute pass.

Morley, Hayes & Co. are meeting with delays in getting the plate glass for their building front. They have been compelled to change the date of their opening to Feb ruary 1st. They have already received one car of freight and the balance will soon be here.

At the Presbyterian church Mr. Black will preach both morning and evening.

In the evening his subject of discourse will be "Woman's Work from Christ's Standpoint." "Being in memoriam" of the late Mrs. Jane Paul. The W. C. T. U.

and other friends are cordially invited.

Public worship at the First Baptist church, corner Kiowa and Weber streets, at 11 a. m., with sermon by the Rev. O.

E. Merrill. In the evening the pastor,

Rev. Richard Montague, will preach, es pecially to young men, subject "Drift ing." Sunday school at Roswell at 2:30 p. m., with preaching by Mr. J. E. Bay at 3:30.

The members of the Women's Aid So ciety of Colorado Springs make an ear nest appeal for partly worn dresses and sacques for two special cases where the needy women have had fever. Some overcoats for boys from eight to twelve years of age are much needed. Send to the employment office, at 26 North Te jon street.

The normal teachers' class, under the leadership of Rev. W. B. Bradford of Denver, which has not been during the holidays and the week of prayer, will be resumed with this week's meeting on Friday evening next in the parlors of the Congregational church at 7:30 p. m. All teachers are cordially invited to be present.

Services at the Congregational church on Bijou street, opposite Acacia park, at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. The pastor Rev.

James D. Gregg, will preach in the morn ing. In the evening will be held exer cises appropriate to the second anniver sary of the formation of the society of Christian Endeavor. The president,

Mr. M. T. Hale, will make a report of the progress and present condition of the society, and addresses will be given by the pastor and President Sperry.

The engagement of the Boston Sym phony Orchestral club at the opera house next Tuesday evening brings be fore us the greatest wind and string band formerly identified with the Theo dore Thomas orchestra of New York and Boston Symphony orchestra and ac cording to reports from the press critics everywhere who he they appeared during the past three months. The organization is said to be one of the best musical clubs that has visited the West this sea son. They will no doubt draw a good house.

Prof. Denton delivered the first of his series of popular lectures in Boston on Thursday afternoon. By the aid of specimens of plants in fruit and the microscope, they will be made very inter esting and practical as well. The college possesses a valuable collection of mounted preparations for the microscope and Professor Denton will make use of his own preparations. Any one who has a leisure hour could spend it very profit ably at these lectures. The study of botany is one most admirably suited for those who are in the [illegible] health.

The study of [illegible] wondrous adaptation of [illegible] variety of form, the quest after [illegible] with congenial spirits, [illegible] ments to a fascinating study. To [illegible] exercise in the open air for some other purpose than that of [illegible] the best way to find health. The number of study is optional as well as [illegible] ance on the recitations. The next lecture is Monday, the 14th, and there is still opportunity to begin the course, as Professor Denton will repeat [illegible] first lecture.

A heavy snow fell on Sunday night in Manitou and to-day [illegible] with the heaviest fall of the winter [illegible] reports say that comparatively little snow has fallen in the mountains

The town [illegible] has the power to take action in the matter of those sidewalks, but adjourned one or two [illegible] This matter will be acted upon shortly. Figures have been obtained from the quarries, and there seems to be a general desire to take advantage of the offer of the D. & R. G. railroad company to transport stone to Manitou free of charge.

It will be remembered that [illegible] week ago last Friday Frank Brown was found dead in bed in his [illegible] West Costilla street by his wife and a friend of hers upon their return from Pueblo. The funeral occurred last Tuesday afternoon. At the inquest Mrs Brown testified that both she and her husband were afraid of [illegible] Conelly, her first husband, that he had threatened their lives at sundry times, as far as New Year. She also gave Conelly a very bad reputation generally, and said that the reason she got a divorce from him was because he had been in both the penitentiary and jail. On Friday Deputy Sheriff Brazleton of Colorado City arrested Mrs. Brown and Conelly on a charge of adultery, as they were living together in that city. On Saturday they were taken before Justice Smith of Colorado City for examination. They were held to await action by the grand jury in the sum of $1000 each. They failed to give bail and are now in the county jail.

Hallett & Baker have leased the brick building being erected on Cascade avenue, three doors north from Pike's Peak avenue, and will move into it [illegible] completed, which will be about March 1st. They will have one of the best equipped undertaking establishments in the west, with office and funeral rooms on the front portion and workshop and display room as far as possible by having tastefully arranged rear rooms and entrance for conducting their work.

Capt. M. L. De Coursey has received a letter from the Hon. W. F. Vilas, in which occurs the following [illegible] "By your courtesy I was in receipt of New Year's edition of the GAZETTE and I thank you for remembering me. It is creditable to the publishers and gives abundant evidence of the growth and prosperity of the city, in which I rejoice as much as ever. I would like very much to run out there for a few days, but fear I cannot leave Washington long enough for that trip."

Stockholders in the east have begun to realize what the ruinous cuts of the trunk lines mean. It means not only that these railroads are doing business at a loss, but that merchants overstock during the cut rate and so anticipate their shipments. The effect of it, therefore, will be felt for six months to come in the earnings of the railroad. This is not simply injurious to the railroad, but is very demoralizing to the business out here. There are a great many commodities on which the freight is twenty five to fifty per cent of the cost. The cut of the freight, therefore, from a half to three-quarters means a great decrease in the cost of goods laid down here. The merchant who carries a full stock, so as to be always able to supply his trade finds his competitor, who carries a small stock, is able to lay in goods at these low freight rates and undersell him from ten to fifteen per cent. It introduces an element of uncertainty into the business that can hardly be estimated. The interstate commerce bill undertook to correct this by providing that there should be sixty days notice of a change in rates. This was a wise law because the cut rates are always given without warning. If it were known sixty days beforehand, merchants could arrange their stocks so as to be prepared for it. The rates could not be raised for another sixty days so merchants would have ample time to ship. The provision was a good one both for the railroads and merchants. The railroads which would be compelled to wait sixty days after the announcement and before the cut went into effect, would probably think well before making a cut, especially when the cut could not be raised for another sixty days. Governor Cooper discussed this matter in his message as something which legislatures might wisely take hold of. When we consider that the whole business interests of this country are at the mercy of the railroads, it is important that no irresponsible parties should be allowed to injure business by the cutting of rates and also at the same time injure the railroad property that they are managing.

In the table we published on Sunday morning of gross receipts of postoffices in towns which had over ten thousand people in 1880, there were two mistakes. The receipts at Muskegon, Mich., were given at $29,014.41. This should read $20,014 41. The receipts at Schenectady, N. Y., should read $18,248.98, instead of $99,248.98. As some of our readers might question the accuracy of the increase in population, we have taken the pains to compare the population of the towns given in 1880 with the population in 1870. With the exception of three towns whose population was not given in the census of 1870, these towns showed an increase in population between 1870 and 1880 of 39 9-10 per cent, or, practically, 40 per cent. As most of these towns are situated in the older states and have not had any mushroom growth, it is probable that in the entire years the increase has been about as much as in the ten years between 1870 and 1880, because there has been almost a steady increase of population at the rate of 2½ per cent. The increase in towns has been greater than the whole rate of increase, because the country does not gain in population so fast. The figures given, therefore, showing the average population of the list of cities that we gave to be 17,737, is substantially correct. Correcting for the two mistakes mentioned, the average receipts for each post office is $15,785 58. Our receipts are in round numbers almost 50 per cent above the average receipts of these towns with an average population of 17,737. It is well worth emphasizing these figures. There could be no better evidence of the intelligence of the population of this city or its rank as a business town. If the government will only make its allotment of clerks in proportion to this business it will not be necessary for the postmaster and his assistants to continually overwork, in order to get through with the business. The extent of this business also suggests that the government might make a wise use of some of its surplus in putting a government building here. It would be a much better way of disposing of the surplus than taking the tax off whiskey and tobacco. The tax on whiskey and tobacco produces a sufficient revenue every four years, or the term of each administration to put up on an average, a hundred thousand dollar postoffice in every town in the country with over four thousand population according to the census of 1880. It would do the whole country much more good to build in each city its own postoffice than to remove the alleged burden of the tax on these two unnecessary articles. Besides the money would go into every community of any size and give a large amount of work to all mechanics. Five thousand buildings in five thousand towns with an average cost of one hundred thousand dollars would give very much more prosperity to the country than four years freedom from the tax on whiskey and tobacco.
